C. Definitions

In this policy:

“University asset” means all physical and academic assets of the University including, but not limited to: all physical structures and property, indoor and outdoor physical spaces or attributes, endowments, and academic and research units and programs.

“University initiative” means any University-sponsored initiative or activity, including but not limited to lecture series, awards or other forms of recognition, and non-academic programs.

4. University assets or University initiatives may be assigned the name of the donor making the gift, or the name of another individual or organization where the consent of that individual or organization (or their estate or successor) has been obtained.
5. Naming shall enhance the profile and image of the University; it shall not undermine the University's reputation.
6. Naming shall not be granted in a manner that implies the University's endorsement of a political or ideological position or the use of a particular product or service.
7. Naming shall be independent of, and shall not influence, any decisions made by the University in relation to internal academic, administrative or operational matters.
8. Named recognition may be revoked in accordance with the applicable procedures where the association of the name with the University undermines the University's reputation.
9. All granting of named recognition, except naming under section 3(d), will be formally documented in an agreement, or in the case of University initiated or honorific naming, in a formal memorandum.
